O THE PUBLIC --

We have endeavored to make a directory that will be of service to the people of Corvallis.

The information was obtained by actual house-to-house calls made by local people, and the use of all available information for checking against errors and omissions, and we believe the information herein will be found practically correct, but we cannot and do not guarantee the correctness of any part of the directory.

Experience gained from the work this year enables us to plan a more complete directory for 1935 and we will appreciate any suggestions you may have to offer.

OREGON STATE COLLEGE

Oregon State College, one of the institutions of the State System of Higher Education which are located in six different cities, was established at Corvallis in 1868. It is the seat of the State's scientific and technical higher curricula, comprising lower division (junior college) studies in the liberal arts and sciences, and upper division and graduate curricula in the natural sciences, and in professional curricula in Agriculture, Education, Engineering and Industrial Arts, Forestry, Home Economics and Pharmacy, and a degree curriculum in Secretarial Science.

The property of the College is inventoried at about seven and a half million dollars; the campus and College lands at Corvallis comprise 1,000 acres, while a total of 7,000 acres, including experiment station lands, arboretum and forest lands, are owned by the State and the counties for the use of the various functions of the State College.

The campus extends from the heart of the city at Ninth street westward to the Agricultural Mall at Thirtieth street, where the College farms begin, extending west and south toward the foothills of the Coast Range.

While the depression has greatly reduced student attendance, the normal enrollment for the ten years between 1920 and 1930 was 3600 for regular degree-course students, exclusive of summer session and other short courses. The College is distinguished for its service to agriculture, home economics, and the industries. High standards of scholarship and achievement, a strong faculty, an alert high-minded body of students, and a distinctive college spirit have combined to make the name "OREGON STATE" a symbol of desirable college life.

of ADVERTISING. . . . is simply a matter of converting good will into cash . . . admirable if a company is to be liquidated but highly dangerous if the business is to be kept going.
