Starting School or Childcare

Starting school can be an exciting, but often stressful, transition for a young child. Whether a child is heading off to preschool, childcare, or kindergarten for the first time in September, parents want to know that their child is ready for this big transition and off to a good start.

The Youth Librarians recommend the following books to help with your child's transition:

Look Out Kindergarten, Here I Come!

by Nancy Carlson
Even though Henry is looking forward to going to kindergarten, he is not sure about staying once he first gets there.

Llama Llama Misses Mama
by Anna Dewdney
Llama Llama experiences separation anxiety on his first day of nursery school.

My First Day at Nursery School

by ROSEMARY WELLS

Yoko's World of Kindness

by Rosemary Wells
Six stories about earning skills and building confidence, about how people are different, how teasing can hurt feelings, and about making friends for children going to school for their very first year.

Celebrate Grandparents Day Sept. 13!

Grandparents and grandchildren can share a special and unique bond. In 2009, Grandparents Day is celebrated on September 13th. Holidays and summer months are often the times when families visit their extended relatives who may live miles away. For other families, seeing Grandma and Grandpa is a regular occurrence. In fact, according to a 2006 American Community Survey, 6.1 million grandparents have grandchildren younger than 18 living with them. Many of these grandparents also serve as their grandchildren's primary caregivers. [Source: http://www.census.gov/acs/www/Products/users_guide/index.htm]

If you are a grandparent yourself, you might find useful information at the AARP's Grandparenting Information Center:

Whether grandparents are near or far, they deserve to be celebrated!

The bears go in their caves

Keeping warm and cozy

Time for lazy days

When the snow is gone

And the sun comes out to play

The bears will wake up from their sleep

And then go on their way.

Bear Snores On by Karma Wilson E WILSON

On a cold winter night many animals gather to party in the cave of a sleeping bear, who then awakes and protests that he has missed the food and the fun.

Playing with the Alphabet

Letter knowledge is the ability to recognize that each letter is different with different sounds and different names.

Letter knowledge is an important early literacy skill. What does this mean for your child? Before your child enters kindergarten, he or she should be introduced to the alphabet through a variety of ways—by singing the alphabet song, sharing alphabet books, writing, and pointing out different letters and sounds in the print around your house and town. A child's eventual success in school begins before she's ever entered through the doors of her first classroom.

Would you be surprised to learn that a child's knowledge of the alphabet when she enters kindergarten is one of the best predictors of her 10th grade reading ability?

For babies, playing with shapes and blocks help builds the foundation for learning the alphabet.

Toddlers and preschoolers can play with the ABCs by making letters out of play dough, using their whole bodies to write letters in the air, feel the shapes of letters with sandpaper letters, and play with foam, block and magnetic alphabet sets.

Choose alphabet books with clear, simple representations of letters—both lower and upper case—and illustrations of familiar objects. Once a child has learned the ABCs, move on to books that illustrate the different sounds each letter makes.

Looking for a good alphabet book to share with your child? We recommend the following picture books to build letter knowledge:

- Alligators All Around by Maurice Sendak
- Alphabet Rescue by Audrey Wood
- Alphabet Under Construction by Denise Fleming
- The Alphabet from A to Y with Bonus Letter, Z! by Steve Martin
- Chicka Chicka Boom Boom by Bill Martin Jr.
- Eating the Alphabet by Lois Ehlert
- Flora McDonnell's ABC by Flora McDonnell
- Shiver Me Letters: a Pirate's ABC by June Sobel
- Toot and Puddle: Puddle's ABC by Holly Hobbie

Fall Early Literacy Activities

Inspired by Leaf Man by Lois Ehlert
& Pumpkin Town (or nothing is better or worse than pumpkins) by Katie McKy

Leaf Man by Lois Ehlert tells the story of a man made of leaves who blows away, traveling where the wind takes him. After reading the story, take a nature walk outside and collect leaves, nuts, seeds, and sticks to make a leaf man or nature collage with your child. Talk about the journey your child's leaf man might take in the wind.

Pumpkin Town! (or nothing is better or worse than pumpkins) by Katie McKy is a good fall-themed read-aloud illustrating that there can be "too much of a good thing." After a plentiful pumpkin harvest, five brothers get rid of the pumpkin seeds they no longer need. When the seeds get carried by the wind and cover the town, sprouting vines and pumpkins everywhere, the brothers must find a way to save the town. After reading the story with your child, cut open a pumpkin and clean out the seeds. Roast the seeds to eat or use for counting, sorting or for decorating a collage. Counting and sorting helps build early math skills.
